So Morgan and I are part of a Live Action Role Playing group (your que to yell NERDS!), if you have seen the "Lightning Bolt" You Tube video, that's pretty much it. Though this is a better video

It's really like a big improv game that lasts for hours. You make up your own character, there are some rules to the game and then you can beat people up with foam weapons.

I'm posting here that our story teller could use some non-player characters, people to just play monsters, bandits and such for him. You don't have to be there the whole time but if you are curious about LARPing, want to beat people or be beaten with foam weapons, want to improv different characters shout out here and I'll keep you in the loop. Otherwise I'll just post here regarding info when I get it. I know our next game is April 27th.
